The Old Settlers.

The Old Settlers' Reunion, at the Fair, Thursday brought out a large crowd. All were surprised to find how many of the carliest settlers settlers. are. Both men and women attended, the latter tak-ing a deep interest in the proceedings. This being the first meeting, no special arrangements were made for any proceedings, except simply to come to-gether, shake bands with old friends, and register their names. But an organization was formed, and henceforth annual meetings will be held, at the Court House, where the gatherings will be enter-

Job Work. We wish to call the particular attention of the quiness men of Doniphan County to our Job Dement, quality of work, prices, etc. If we can do as good work, at as low prices, as it can be got else where, we think it is their duty and to their interes to do so, thereby aiding to sustain home enterprise. We have now secured the services of as good a job printer as there is in the West, who has had long exerience in the best offices, and who can give curful attention to this department. We have also r vised the list of prices, and are now doing work as low as it can be got in St. Joseph, in any of the la-test and best styles. Our office is one of the most complete in the West. It may surprise many peo-ple, but it is a fact, that with the exception of large wood type for posters, we have more type and in greater variety, than the famous Steam Printing Company, of St. Joseph, and more than any office in this State, unless it be the State Printing House The material is nearly all new, and of the latest pointed by the County Superintendent for the examination of applicants for teachers' certificates. Al persons teaching in the County, who have not secured certificates, should attend this examination, a ed certificates, should attend this examination, as they cannot legally draw pay until they have certificates. Many teachers labor under wrong impressions in regard to obtaining certificates. The law positively prehibits the examining board from re newing an old certificate, without a new examina tion; and a certificate given in this way, or any of er way, without an examination, is illegal, and the school board cannot legally pay wages to such teachers. It is not in the power of the County Superin tendent to favor any teacher in this respect. By so loing, he would violate the law, and render him iable to be deposed from office. Are you suffering from indigestion! If so, as your druggist for a bottle of SHERMAN'S PRICKLY ASH BITTERS. Taken as directed, it will cure you. Those Bitters have now been before the public for a LITERARY NOTICES.

Wide Awake, for October, 1881. The October WIDE AWAKE is notable for the in-uguration of a Reading Union for the young folks, giving a Reading Course for the month of sixten pages. This will be a regular feature, forming a per-manent enlargement of the magazine. Law papers for little citizens, Magna Charta stories, Health and Strength papers, Musical biographies, a series about the ocean, articles telling How to do Things. The Wise Blackbird's page, and Natural History exploraions, constitute an attractive and valuable miscel any for the first year. The Union has been name lany for the first year. The Union has been induced for Chautauqua, "Chautauqua Young Folks' Reading Union," (C. Y. F. R. U.) in honor of Chautauqua's great cheutele of young people who have adopted the Course of Readings here given.

After the dainty autumn frontispiece and poem, the magazine opens with a charming article, "Two Bears," by Amanda B. Harris, giving, by the way, some interesting reminiscences of Theodore Parker. This is followed by one of Mrs. Lizzie W. Champney's stories semi-historical, of course, entitled, bey a stores—semi-man illustrated with a full-page Foreign Embassy," and illustrated with a full-page engraving by G. F. Barnes. Edward Everett Hale, in his Teuth Talk, the best one yet, tells how to play "a newspaper game," and a good deal about illus-trating stamp collections. "Boys B. C.," by M. J. Safford, is a graphic story of street life in ancient Egypt, with several excellent drawings by F. S. Church. "Isnac Lemmon," by James Clement Ambrose, under the thin disguise of a name, is a dra-matic account of the boyhead of Abraham Lincoln, he incidents gathered from conversations with obneighbors of the plucky lad. Part II. of "King Philip's Head," by Ario Bates, generous installments of "Sharon," "Having His Own Way," and "Polly Cologue," together with many field and wayside music, and puzzles, make up a very compar ionable number. D. Lethrop & Co., published Boston, Mass.

Lon. Richter was not robbed at all. The papers were "off," which is nothing uncommon for the dailies. He was not even in Topeka, but he went from here directly to Pittaburg. Penn., paid his sister a visit, and returned this week.

The three Highland Sabbath Schools united, on last Priday morning, and marched with the band to a grove east of town, where they spent the day enjoying themselves hugely. When the dinner hour arrived, a bounteous rejust was spread before the assemblage, which was consumed as only "little Sunday School childrem" can consume goodies. At intervals during the day, the band furnished good music.

Hendrick diseases the perennial tariff question, which he insists is a subject not for politicians, but for economists, to be settled, not in the councils of politicians, but by a commission of manufacturers and business men. M. Desire Charnay, in the ninth of his valuable archaeological papers, sets forth the grand results of his researches among the "Ruined Cities of Central America." Finally, Col. H. B. Carrington, in an article on "Washington as Strategist," proves conclusively the title of Washington to be esteemed "first in war."

CHRISTIAN EVIDENCES. Article Third-Interpret

Interpretation is an act. It is the act of teaching what is the meaning of another's language; or that skill which enables us to attach to another's language the same necating that the author himself at-tached to it. Any other meaning than this can nev-er be called, with propriety, the meaning of the anthor. The interpretation of the books of the Bible is a high and difficult task. It has been truly said, that on of the books of the Bible is a all solid knowledge and judicious defense of divine truth must originate from a right understanding and accurate interpretation of the Scriptures. The purity of the Christian religion has shone brighter or been of the Christian religion has shone brighter or been obscured in proportion as the study of sacred interpretation has flourished or decayed.

Christian doctrine is presented only in written records; hence the interpretation of those records is absolutely essential to a knowledge of it. There are many difficulties in the way of successful interpretation. It requires learning, judgment, and diligence; and, frequently, more than a usual degree of understanding is required io manage an exsgetical inquiry with success. The Bible presents more than usual difficulties to the interpreter; such as the antiquity of its books, the peculiar dialect. Its manuers customs, education and style, modes of thinking and expression, situation, government, climate, of the expression, situation, government, climate, of the authors, which in so many respects are dissimilar to ours. Interpretation may be called grammatical, when the meaning of words, phrases, and sentences is made out by the usage and the context. It is called historical, when the meaning is illustrated and called historical, which the meaning is missecular some confirmed by historical arguments which serve to show, in a clear manner, that no other sense can be put upon the passage, whether the nature of the sub-ject is regarded, or the genius, manner and circumtances of the writer.

First, He must have a right perception of the Second, He must be able to explain them properly.

Hence, the interpreter must demand satisfactory reasons for believing in any particular explanation. reasons for believing in any particular explanation, and build his opinion respecting the sense of any passages on such reasons. These reasons must be based on the usage, the context, the nature of the subject, the design of the writer. In order to interact the subject, the design of the writer.

irable helps: 1st. No one will be likely to get the true mean of the Scriptures, unless he approaches their study with the right aim, and in a truth-loving spirit; such spirit as David had, when he said, "I will hear whole heart have I sought thee; order my steps it thy word, and let not any iniquity have don over me."

2d. He must have a general and special knowledge contents; and of the world and things the This knowledge is gained by reading, observation, This knowledge is gained by recoming observation, and study. It is a good thing to be acquainted with the original language in which the Bible was written; to be theroughly conversant with sacred geography, with Bible history, manners and customs, with the natural history of the Bible, and with Church to be interpreted by the same rule as other books. While we should approach their study with the eincere and truth-loving spirit of an honest heart, yet it is nothing short of fanaticism to despise literature and general study of language, and refer everything merely to the influence of the spirit. It is well stated in the following words:

Scriptures be a revelation to men, then are to be read and understood by men. If the same laws of language are not observed in this revelation as are common to men, then they have no guide to the right understanding of the Scriptures; and an interpreter needs inspiration as much as the original writer. It follows, of course, hat the Scriptures would be no revelation in themselves, nor of any use than that when God has spoken to men, he has spoken in language of men-for he has spoken by men, and for men." If every man has the right, and is bound to read the Scriptures, and to judge for him-self what hey teach, be must have certain rules to guide him in the exercise of this privilege and duty. by human anthority, and they have no binding force which does not flow from their own intrinsic truth and propriety. They are few and simple.

1st. The words of Scripture are to be taken their plain and most obvious historical sense. That is, they must be taken in the sense attached to them in the age, and by the people to whom they were ad-dressed. This only assumes that the sacred writers were honest, and meant to be understood. An old writer says: "The Scripture can not be understo theologically, until it is understood grammaticall Hence, the first thing is to get the true grammatic and historical meaning of words.

2d. If any passage of Scripture is obs

4th. Consider the peculiarities and of the writer. This will include his character and of the writer. This will include his character and mission; the time in which he lived; the country in which he lived, with its manners and customs; the opinions with which he was familiar, and which he opposed or defended; and the language in which he

are of the greatest importance, in order to the prop-er understanding of the word of God. But, as has already been suggested, nothing is more necessary than an humble and teachable dispo-sition and mind. Few things—perhaps nothing—are vision is not made in the Constitution or the laws.

Among these questions, that of the succession to the Presidency in case of the inability of elected incumbent, holds a conspicuous place, and it is treated by the writer with much learning and in the most judicial temper. Prof. Geo. P. Flaher, of Yale College, contributes a profound study of "The Elements of Puritanism," pointing out who. more bestile to the pursuit of truth than self-conceit and pride of intellect; and there is no temper more ARTHUR AND BLAINE.—So far as the present Cabinet is concerned, it is known that during the clay of several days which General Arthur made in Washington, immediately following the shooting of the President, the most friendly and agreeable relations were established between him and them, and he and Mr. Blaine particularly became exceedingly cordial and intimate. The country need not be surprised, if Mr. Arthur becomes President and his wishes are respected, that Mr. Blaine should remain in the Cabinet as long as any of the present members, notwithstanding so many seem to
